The Ford Consul Classic is a mid-sized car that was launched in May 1961 and built by Ford UK from 1961 to 1963. It was available in two or four door saloon form, in Standard or De Luxe versions, and with floor or column gearshift. The name Ford Consul 315 was used for export markets. The Ford Consul Capri was a 2-door coupé version of the Classic, and was available from 1961 until 1964.

Demand was so huge that Ford opened factories in Great Britain and Europe, effectively taking his people car to the world. By the time the '60s rolled along, Ford were one of the biggest brands on the market. They were reeling, however, from a model named after Henry Ford's son. This dud, canned in 1960, cost the company $2 million.

Midway through the 1962 model year, the company rushed a separate cab and bed into production as an alternative to the unibody. So last-minute was the conversion that Ford hadn't tooled up to produce a new bed, instead sending 1962 and 1963 models down the line with the box from the 1960 F-Series, which did not line up with the new truck's swoopy lines.
