Women in the Islamic State: Victims and Victimizers. The challenge of identifying and prosecuting lower-ranking women war criminals is especially relevant when considering women's extensive participation in ISIL. By June 2018, at least 13,500 foreign women and children from at least 51 countries were living in ISIL-held territory in Syria and Iraq. These women and their Syrian and Iraqi counterparts contributed to the Islamic State's financing, recruiting, and online propaganda.
