In this extraordinary bestseller, Steven Pinker, one of the world's leading cognitive scientists, does for the rest of the mind what he did for language in his 1994 book, The Language Instinct. He explains what the mind is, how it evolved, and how it allows us to see, think, feel, laugh, interact, enjoy the arts, and ponder the mysteries of life.

During my time at LSE I was studying amongst some of the smartest and kindest people I've ever met, and this challenged me to think critically and to understand how the human mind works. Often in business you need the ability to read between the lines, be it with your consumers, your employees or your partners and that's something I learned through my LSE classmates and the academic teaching.

The Turing Test has captured the imagination of the general public due to fundamental questions about the nature of the mind. But Stevan Harnad argues the hype over the supposed passing of the Turing Test is misplaced. Alan Turing's idea for cognitive science was simple: Stop worrying about what the mind "is" and explain instead what the mind does.

Turing's idea was simple: Stop worrying about what the mind "is" and explain instead what the mind does. If you can design a system that can do everything that a person with a mind can do – and can do it so that people cannot tell it apart from a real person – then that system will have passed the Turing Test, and the explanation of how that system works will be the explanation of how the mind works.
