Background and original 1954 production. Several productions of Peter Pan were staged early in the 20th century, starting in London in 1904, starring Nina Boucicault as Peter and on Broadway in 1905, starring Maude Adams. In a nod to the original play, and the pantomime tradition it derives from, the title role of Peter Pan in the musical is usually played by a woman, including Mary Martin, Sandy Duncan and Cathy Rigby, among others.

Peter Pan and Wendy began as one of many stories created between J.M. Barrie, a well established author, and two boys to whom he was close. People were first initiated with Peter Pan as a theatrical play. Adults and children alike instantly loved the story, and Peter Pan soon became a classic tale. Reproductions of this now classic story have had over one hundred years of history through plays, films, and other art forms.
