The three dimensions of the new urban sociology are the global, the national, and the local. It is interesting when all of the dimensions come together. They are significant because they all bounce off of each other in some way, shape, or form.

Chapter 1: The New Urban Sociology | Urban Sociology Spring16

Urban sociology is the sociological study of life and human interaction in metropolitan areas. It is a normative discipline of sociology seeking to study the structures, environmental processes, changes and problems of an urban area and by doing so provide inputs for urban planning and policy making. In other words, it is the sociological study of cities and their role in the development of ...

Urban sociology - Wikipedia

Urbanization is the study of the social, political, and economic relationships in cities, and someone specializing in urban sociology studies those relationships. In some ways, cities can be microcosms of universal human behavior, while in others they provide a unique environment that yields its own brand of human behavior.
